Engaging with the public a guide for CCGs

NHS Clinical Commissioners has published A guide for CCGs engaging the public in difficult decisions about health service change. This guide provides advice for CCGs on involving the public in difficult decisions regarding transformational change. It draws on case studies of three different reconfiguration programmes: Better Beginnings, which looked at maternity and paediatric services in East Sussex; healthier together, a programme around health and social care services in Greater Manchester and Future of Acute Hospital Services in Worcestershire. It also includes a number of top tips on how to get public engagement right.

NICE clinical audit tool: depression in children and young people

NICE has added Depression in children and young people: Identification and management in primary, community and secondary care – clinical audit tool to its range of resources. Clinical audit tools are Excel spreadsheets developed to help with clinical audit. They contain clinical audit standards, data collection sheets, a clinical audit report an action plan template and a printable data collection form. When data is entered into the data collection sheets the audit results are automatically displayed in the audit report.

Use of staffing agencies in the NHS

The Secretary of State for Health has outlined a package of measures to help cut costs while improving frontline care. The measures focus on the spiralling agency staff bills which cost the NHS £3.3 billion last year. This was more than the cost of all that year's 22 million A&E admissions combined. Other controls include limiting the use of expensive management consultants. New rules will be introduced which will: set a maximum hourly rate for agency doctors and nurses; ban the use of agencies that are not on approved frameworks; put a cap on total agency staff spending for each NHS trust in financial difficult and require approval for any consultancy contracts over £50,000.

Developing leadership

The Kings Fund has published Talent management: developing leadership not just leaders. This guide aims to enable board members and senior leaders to challenge their current thinking on managing talent. It looks at the key aspects of holistic talent management and succession planning approach. It focuses on the three core pillars of implementing a talent management strategy – recruitment, development, retention and deployment.

Monitor: regulatory regime

Monitor is to strengthen its regulatory regime for NHS foundation trusts to help them live within their means and reduce excessive spending on agency staff and management consultants. It proposes to increase its scrutiny of financial performance so it can take action sooner against providers that are not providing value for money for their patients. The package of measures will enable Monitor to ensure that foundation trusts play their part in addressing the efficiency challenge set out by the Health Secretary, to make savings to NHS budgets in 2015/16.

Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards resources

The Social Care Institute for Excellence has published new resources covering the Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards. The resources look at how sometimes there is a case for depriving people of their liberty; for instance, when someone lacks the capacity to consent to their care and treatment. The case for the decision is taken in order to keep them safe from harm. The new resources, two films and an updated briefing, are intended to be used by care home managers, registered managers, care providers, hospital managers, social workers, best interest assessors and independent mental capacity advocates, along with people with care and support needs and their families

Reducing infant mortality and sudden unexpected death in infancy

Public Health England has published two new public safety updates on reducing infant mortality and sudden unexpected death in infancy (SUDI) to coincide with Child Safety Week (1 to 7 June). The resources particularly look at the prevention of child deaths in London where around 10 babies a week die before their first birthday. PHE London is raising awareness of the common risk factors and preventative measures to educate parents, carers and health professionals across the capital. The publications are:

- Reducing infant mortality in London 2015 - Evidence-based resource which aims to provide a snapshot of infant mortality and its known risk factors including strategies for prevention
- London Child Safety Update – Sudden Unexpected Deaths in Infancy: advice for people working with children, young people and families - Summary of the evidence about sudden unexpected deaths in infancy (SUDI) which aims to develop an evidence-based resource about prevention.

Five Year Forward View: the Success Regime

Monitor has published Five Year Forward View - The Success Regime: A whole systems intervention. This document provides detail of the 'Success Regime' which is aimed at providing increased support and direction to the most challenged systems in order to secure improvement in three main areas: short-term improvement against agreed quality, performance or financial metrics; medium and longer-term transformation, including the application of new care models where applicable; and developing leadership capacity and capability across the health system.

Health and homelessness

The Queen's Nursing Institute has published Oral Health and homelessness: guidance for community nurses. It covers the specific oral health risks and needs of people who are homeless and includes useful advice nurses can give to re-connect patients with community dentists, to address fears and phobias, and to give practical advice for patients about looking after their teeth. The guide highlights information about the three major preventable oral health conditions – periodontitis, oral cancer and caries – to help patients who may have concerns about seeing a dental professional.

NICE Bites - Irritable bowel syndrome in adults

The May 2015 NICE Bites bulletin from the North West Medicines Information Service covers Irritable bowel syndrome in adults. It covers the diagnosis and management of adults with IBS in primary care. The aim of this publication is to provide healthcare professionals with a clear and succinct summary of key prescribing points taken from the NICE guidance CG61. It offers best practice advice on the care of all people who are using medicines and also those who are receiving suboptimal benefit from medicines.

Equity of access for heart bypass and angioplasty

The University of York Centre for Health Economics has published research paper 112 Socioeconomic inequality in waiting times for heart bypass and angioplasty: does patient choice explain the gradient? Equity of access is a key policy objective in publicly-funded healthcare systems. Using data on patients undergoing non-emergency heart revascularization procedures in the English National Health Service, this research finds evidence of significant differences in waiting times within public hospitals between patients with different socioeconomic status (up to 35% difference between the most and least deprived population quintiles).

Older people and cancer

Public Health England and NHS England have updated the publication Older People and Cancer originally published in December 2014. This report summarises what is known about older people and cancer, drawing together information from different sources and studies. Primarily this report defines older people as those aged 75 and over and is focused on England however other age groups and geographies are presented and compared where it is useful to do so. Each chapter provides high level key messages, followed by a more comprehensive overview of the evidence and statistics.

Safe staffing programme

NHS England has asked NICE not to begin new activity in its safe staffing programme. NHS England will now take forward the issue of staffing work as part of a wider programme of service improvement. It is looking at alternative approaches to helping NHS providers to achieve the right levels and mix of staff. NICE has produced guidance on safe staffing in two settings: adult acute wards and maternity. They were part of a programme to develop evidence-based guidelines on safe staffing for the NHS which began in 2013. Two evidence reviews currently in progress will be completed and will help inform future work on safe staffing. The existing guidance on adult acute wards and maternity settings will remain in place.
